LEV SLED

Own the Trenches

- Train players to reverse the opponent's momentum prior to rolling the hips and securing control with leverage.
- From a good football position, hit the pad and overcome its resistance. Only after the pad is driven at least five inches will the LEV Head release, allowing the player to roll the hips and lift the pad, finishing off the opponent.
- Offense & defense. Great sled for BOTH offensive and defensive drills.
- Heavy weight sled – eliminates the need to add additional weight.

For more size specs, accessories, and product information go to www.RogersAthletic.com.

"Engage with a flat back and your hands inside. Break the stalemate. Arch the back, lift and extend while maintaining a base, balance and leg drive. These are the fundamentals of the drive block which the LEV Sled teaches. It is without question the best teaching aid for blocking that I have ever used."

*— Art Walker Jr. — Head Football Coach

ISO Sled

The Sled for Linebackers

The ISO Sled's pad is perpendicular to the ground because linebackers, defensive backs, and other defensive players have to defeat blocks at a different angle than down linemen. Now these players can develop proper shedding technique.

Linebackers and DB's can knock the pad back, throw the pad the opposite way from which the ball carrier commits, and finish the drill by accelerating to the ball.

- ★ The ISO Sled features the LEV Sled head, including its coil spring. The hit, compression, and recoil action simulates the opponent.
- ★ Push the spring in five inches or more and the player can lift the pad for leverage practice.
- ★ Optional Pivoting Pad Adapter moves the pad left and right — training players to maintain contact and keep pressure on the opponent.

SHED BALL

COMING SOON

Use the Rogers Athletic "Shed Ball" to drill defeating or countering cut blocks, an offensive line technique intended to knock a defender to the ground by taking out his legs. The knee high ball simulates a moving object coming to disrupt a defenders path to the ball carrier. Roll it at the legs of a defensive player, replicating the cut block. The defender then needs to react to the moving target with a bent knee position, shooting the hands out in front to stalemate the accelerating "Shed Ball" and quickly kick the feet back to keep the ball out of their legs and maintain balance, then continue to find the ball carrier.

The Shed Ball measures 28" in diameter.

A special-edition LEV Sled is attached to a platform for year-round training, and fits easily in your weight room in a space 10'9" x 4'.
